

You Go On

Didn't I tell you, I'm lost in the middle, lost in the middle, of a hard place and a riddle box.
I should've seen, the webs in the attic, the webs in the attic,
of a cold place and a shadowed hall.

You go on and on and on, foretelling the impending fate, a member of the human hate.
You go on and on and on, proclaiming you're a super star, a candle in the wind you are.

Oh oh la la la-eh
Oh oh la la la-eh
Oh oh la la la-eh

Why didn't you, lose your inhibitions, lose your inhibitions,
About your grandeur and you hardened façade.
I should've seen, the lack of entertainment, the lack of entertainment, when you're grooving to a jam guitar.

You go on and on and on, foretelling the impending fate, a member of the human hate.
You go on and on and on, proclaiming you're a super star, a candle in the wind you are.

Oh oh la la la-eh
Oh oh la la la-eh
Oh oh la la la-eh

I'm moving on, lost in the rhythm, lost in the rhythm,
from a drummer and a bass guitar.
I've never helped you, find what you're looking for, find what you're looking for,
but you're troubled and you're off by far.

You go on and on and on, foretelling the impending fate, a member of the human hate.
You go on and on and on, proclaiming you're a super star, a candle in the wind you are.

Oh oh la la la-eh
Oh oh la la la-eh

You go on and on and on
You go on you go on you go on
On and on and on, baby you go on.

And we sing

Oh oh oh la la la-eh
Oh oh la la la-eh
Oh oh la la la-eh
